Conference City: Rome, Italy

Rome is the capital city of Italy and is located in the central-western part of the country. It is one of the most historically rich cities in the world and is famous for its stunning architecture, art, and ancient ruins.

Rome is home to many iconic landmarks such as the Colosseum, the Pantheon, the Roman Forum, and the Trevi Fountain. The Vatican City, an independent city-state located within Rome, is also home to the famous St. Peter's Basilica and the Sistine Chapel.

Apart from its historical significance, Rome is also known for its delicious cuisine, including pizza, pasta, gelato, and wine. Visitors can also enjoy shopping in its fashionable boutiques and markets, as well as experiencing the lively nightlife scene.

Rome is easily accessible by air, with two international airports serving the city. There is also an extensive public transportation system, including buses and the metro, which make it easy to navigate around the city.

Why to visit Rome in March?

Visiting Rome in March offers a delightful blend of pleasant weather, fewer tourists, and vibrant cultural events. The mild temperatures, typically ranging from 8°C to 15°C (46°F to 59°F), make exploring the city's iconic landmarks, such as the Colosseum, Vatican City, and the Roman Forum, comfortable and enjoyable. With fewer crowds compared to the peak summer months, visitors can experience a more intimate and leisurely exploration of Rome's rich history and breathtaking architecture.

March also heralds the beginning of spring, bringing beautiful blossoms to the city's parks and gardens, such as Villa Borghese. Additionally, Rome hosts various festivals and events during this time, including the Rome Marathon and traditional religious celebrations leading up to Easter. These festivities offer a unique glimpse into the local culture and traditions, making March an ideal time to immerse oneself in the timeless charm and lively atmosphere of the Eternal City.
